Poems of the Week.
E. Wheeler, in Chicago Tribune.
MIDWINTER.
Lie still and rest, in the winter repose
That on this holy morning comes to thee
Who have been burdened with the cares that make
The heart weary and the head aches.
Lie still and rest, in the winter repose
God's day of bliss best.
MONDAY.
Awake I start! Out of the dreamy dream!
I feel in the East, behind the morning gleam.
As Monday goes, so goes the week, I say,
Refreshed, renewed, use well the initial day.
And see thy neighbor
Already at his labor.
TUESDAY.
Another morning's banners are unfurled—
Another day's battle is on the world.
It holds new laurels for the soul to win;
Mar not its grace by slothfulness or sin.
Nor sad, away,
Send it to yesterday.
WEDNESDAY.
Half-way to the end—the week's high noon.
The morning hours do speed away so soon!
As when the moon is reached, however bright,
Instantly we look toward the night.
The glow is lost
Once the meridian cross.
THURSDAY.
So well the week had sped, had thou a friend
To spend an hour in converse, it would lend
New beauty to thy lonely soul to win;
To pause a little moment in the strife.
Till soon seems rude
That has no interlude.
FRIDAY.
From feasts abstain; be temperate, and pray;
Fast if thou wilt; and yet, throughout the day,
Neglect no labor and no duty share;
Not many hours are left thee for thy work—
And it were meet
That all should be complete.
SATURDAY.
Now with the night, thou hast no time to waste;
So near the dawn, thou hast no time to waste,
Put up accounts, and let thy soul's eyes look
For flaws and errors in life's ledger-book.
When labor ceases,
How sweet the sense of peace!
VARIETY.
The best medicine—cheerfulness and temperance.
It is extraordinary how long a man may look among the crowd without discovering the face of a friend.—Dickens.
The seeds of love can never grow but under the warm and genial influence of kind feelings and affectionate manners.
A French paper says that no true Count ever found playing a hand-organ on the streets of America. This will be a disappointment to American girls in search of a titled husband.
"I'll subscribe for the paper," said Vanderbilt, having done an agricultural journal he had been reading. "Is the editor a man of high attainments?" His eye had caught an article headed
"Warner your stock regularly."
A Yankee woman recently married a Chinese laundryman, and in three days thereafter the unhappy Celestial, at a baker's shop, had been ordered his pigtail to be cut off, saying, in explanation, "Too much yank."
A coquettish young lady, while airing her knowledge on various subjects, remarked:
"There is nothing made in vain." "You are,"
said a youth standing near her. "Am what?"
said she. "Maiden vain," replied the smart boy.
Many persons are puzzled to understand that the term "fourpenny" means four pence, and
"penny" means one penny. "Fourpenny" means four pence to the thousand, or "six-penny" means six pence to the thousand, and so on. It is an old English term, and meant at first "one pound" and the word "penny" (which understood), but the old English clipped it to "tempus," and from that it degenerated into "penny" was substituted for "pounds." When a thousand made weight, less than one pound they are called tacks, brads, &c., and are reckoned by ounces.
What SHE CAME DOWN ON—A young lady
gave her skating experience as follows:
"You ought to have seen me," said the vicious young lady to the minister; "I'd just got the skates on, made a start, when down I came on my—"
"Maggie!" said her mother.
"What! Oh, it was so funny! One skate went one way and the other went the other way,
and so down I came head over heels."
"Margaret! repeating spoke her father."
"Well, what? They scooted out from under me, and down I came on my—"
"Margaret?" yelled both parents.
"On my little heels, and I had me by the hand, and liked to have smashed him. Now what is the matter?"
The girl's mother emerged from behind the coffee pot, a sigh of relief escaped the minister,
and the old gentleman indignantly turned the conversation into a political channel.—Brunswick News.
Would Never Have Done—Ernest (at six):
"But, mother dear, it is really true the world was made in six days." "Mamma! Yes, Ernest, and if God had pleased he could have made it in two days."
Ernest, after a moment's pause, replied: "Oh,
mother, that would never have done, you know;
why, you know, why, we should have Sunday every other day."
"I have an infinity of the crew," remarked a dismal man to a well-to-do Pawcoket citizen Monday evening, "won't you just examine this and see if I have been cheated?" The citizen thus accosted looked at the man's face and inspected it. It was a book, brand new and with neat leaves. "Would you give me 250 for such a book as this?" continued the man with deferential bow, "I have been told that the citizen took the book, carried it to the fall, dropped it into the sea, and when the water was up, entered his home by back door and went up softly to bed.
Recently Solomon Glase, a colored man, whose experience in agricultural pursuits has enlightened his neighborhood, came to town with the view of getting a divorce from his wife. When asked upon what grounds, he replied:
"I am tired of the grounds of old occasion.
When I rented ten acres and worked one male I suffered a 'man suitable for the occasion. Now I rent sixty acres of land and work five males.
My first wife was a mighty good ten-acre wife,
but she doesn't suit the occasion of sixty acres. I need a 'man what can spread more."
When told by a lawyer that the grounds were not sufficient, he remarked:
"I kin produce the history to show what I'm crazy. I've learned man, and can read clear around 'de majority ob colored gentlemen and a great many white fellers. De reasons belongs to de French history, an' though I don't speak French, I takes about it. You know Napoleon fast married Josephine de Beauharnais."
"Yes," said the lawyer, "but you may become a trifle to historical opulent if you proceed much further."
"Dat's all right. An' you know dat when he got to de head of de government, an' had charge of all de commissaries, he wanted a wife what would spread more, an' he got a dispensation
from Josephine, an' hitched onto Maria Louisa,
'cause she could spread more. Dar's de history an' dar's de precedent, an' of a man can't get a dispensation on dese grounds what's yer court house, and what's yer law?"
A special session of the Legislature may be called, or otherwise Solomon Glase must continue to be the husband of ten-acre-wife—Little Rock, Arkansas, Gazette.
